"Our program for school improvement in the northern district of Lower California, prior to the trouble which resulted in my giving up the office of governor," Colonel Cantu said, "contemplated an expenditure of $130,000 and establishing of 20 schools in the rural districts, in addition to a magnificient high school at Mexicali. During the five years that I ruled as governor of Lower California it was my constant purpose to create better school conditions, to improve the roads and to give adequate protection to life and property rights. Assisting Mrs. Shaw with this part of the entertainment were Mrs. G. S. Robson, who read a wonderful poem by Margaret Widdemer, "A Country Carol", and Mrs. Ellen Smith, who read an equally delightful verse from the pen of George Sterling, entitled "Sails."

When the Alabama Went Down.

In 1864, on the nineteenth of June, the battle between the U. S. S. Kearsarge and the Confederate cruiser Alabama took place outside the harbor of Cherbourg, France. The Alabama had been fitted out at Liverpool by agents of the Confederate government for the purpose of destroying the merchant ships of the Federal government. For two years she sailed the seas under command of Captain Semmes, destroying commerce. In June of 1864 the Alabama was lying in the harbor of Cherbourg and the Kearsarge, which had been pursuing her for more than a year, arrived outside the harbor and waited beyond the three-mile limit from the fourteenth to the nineteenth. On Sunday, the nineteenth, the Alabama came out and after a battle lasting two hours the Confederate sank without surrendering.

The Oriental Paradox.

A curious feature in the rhetoric of the oriental bard is the employment of what may be called figures of impossibility—or the paradox. Their pages furnish copious and surprising examples of this. A man who follows vice instead of virtue, folly rather than wisdom, is one who painfully turns up the barren sand with a golden plow, to sow weeds! he mows a forest of lignum-vitae trees with a crystal scythe! he puts a jeweled vase on a sandalwood fire to cook a dish of husks or pebbles! he devastates a beautiful date garden to plant nettles there instead of palms! . . . "It is written in the sky, on the pages of the air, that good deeds shall be done to him who does good deeds to others."—William R. Alger.

Finds Way to Get Around Storekeeper's Rule.

Dr. George R. Daniels, city health officer of Marion, Ind., is the only one of his family who eats cheese and he does not each much. He went into a local store to buy a small amount.

"I want a nickel's worth of cheese," the doctor said, bravely.

"Sorry, Doc, but I can't cut that small an amount," came back over the counter.

"Well, how about a dime's worth?"

"All right. We can do that," was the reply.

Dr. Daniels received the cheese and asked for a knife. He cut it in two parts, threw down the nickel and walked out.

He got the nickel's worth of cheese.

THE JEWS' TWO SHIPS

By Dr. Frank Crane.
(Copyright, 1919, by Frank Crane.)

I have just seen two pictures in the paper, and my heart is pounding.

One is of the steamship Westward Ho being loaded with tons of grain, thousands of cases of condensed milk, and other life-sustaining provisions, purchased with the American Jewish Relief Funds and American Polish Relief Funds, for the starving women and children of Poland. The port of destination is Danzig, where the cargo will be transported overland to stricken communities. The cost of this cargo exceeds TWO MILLION DOLLARS.

The other is of the steamship Pensacola starting on its long voyage to the Near East, bringing life and happiness to thousands in Palestine, Syria and Armenia. Ports of destination are Constantinople and Beirut. The provisions were purchased by the Joint Distribution Committee of the American Jewish Relief Funds and the American Committee for Relief in the Near East. The cost of this cargo is ONE MILLION EIGHT HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Jews mean nothing to me, nor do Gentiles, nor Baptists, nor Patagonians, nor Southerners, Mahometans, nor Irish.

All these Classes, Races, Sects, Labels, Fences and Pigeon Holes are Holdovers of dead contentions.

They are the Vermiform Appendices of Progress and the Body Politic would undoubtedly be better off for a surgical operation.

Still, Classes linger, and will. We shall go on being proud of our Church, Pedigree, and Locality.

The one, only and wholly admirable way to justify our Class is by Superiority in Helpfulness.

Heaven knows we have killed and hated enough because of our Differences. Let us now compensate His tory by a most strenuous rivalry in Charity, "for," says Bacon, "in all things else there is danger of excess but in Charity there can be no excess."

I love every Jew in the world for those two ships' sake. I would kiss every pretty Jewish girl, salute every rich Jew, and take my hat off before every Synagogue, for those two ships sake.

THIS THING OF GIVING

By GEORGE F. BURBA,
Editor, The Columbus (O.) Evening Dispatch.

I do not understand it, any more than do you, but there is something about this thing of giving that blesses us.

No man has ever impoverished himself by giving. It cannot be done. Those who give most, have most left. No man has ever died poor because of that which he gave away. No one has ever gone hungry after giving away his bread; some way, somewhere, bread has been provided for him.

Misery is upon the war-torn world as it never was before. Want is almost universal in the countries that have been ravished.

They call to us from every quarter of the earth for help. They cry aloud, or moan in tones subdued. The gaunt and famished, the lean and weary, the sick and wounded—they hold their outstretched, empty hands toward us, and beg for help. And we, of all the people in the world, are in a position to relieve them.

I believe that every one who gives a penny will get it back a hundredfold. I believe that every one who dries a tear with his assistance will be spared the shedding of a thousand tears. I believe that every sacrifice we make will so enrich us in the future that our regret will be we did not sacrifice the more.

This thing of giving! A glorious privilege it is! How meaningless now is money that is hoarded. How hateful to himself and to his fellows is he who does not answer to the call for aid.

Give—and in the giving live the life a human being is entitled to enjoy.

Give—and let no thought of sorrow abide with you because you did not give.

Though not born of this ancient race, I am sending along a little contribution to Nathan Straus, who called my attention to these ships (or rather to Arthur Lehman, Treasurer, 20 Exchange Place, New York), and ask the reader to do likewise. We can justify ourselves by what George Ade says "I have lived in several towns, but I cannot remember the name of a place in which Jews were exempted from contributing to Gentile funds."—N. Y. Globe.

Live on the Sunny Side.

There are two classes of people to be met almost daily; the people who live in the shadow and gloom, and those who live on the sunny side of the street. The shadowed ones are sometimes called pessimists, sometimes people of melancholy temperament; sometimes disagreeable people. Wherever they go their characteristic is this—their shadows always travel on before them. Most people will not bear their own burdens, but expose all their wounds to others. They are so busy looking down for pitfalls and sharp stones on which to step that they do not know that there are stars in the sky. These people live on the wrong side of the street, and yet, if they would only walk 20 feet to the other sidewalk, where they would feel the warmth of the sun, it would make all the difference to their feelings.

A Year-Round Necessity

Some people think a safe deposit box is only necessary to house their papers and valuables while they are away for the summer. This is a mistake. Burglars work the year round. Fires occur in fall and winter, too. The only absolute protection all the time is a safe deposit box in the vaults of this bank.

The Popularity of Nucoa
The Excellence of Isleton Butter
The Satisfaction in Blaine's
Steel-Cut Coffee

Nucoa nut margarine was first popular only because of its cheapness. But now many consumers really prefer it to butter. Freshness - its uniform sweetness - has been a great factor in its growing popularity. And Nucoa is but 35c a pound --- less than half the price of butter.

Isleton Butter, though, if one must have butter, is the butter. Our experiments with other brands have always been unsatisfactory. The customer generally says, "I really prefer Isleton. The other butter is good, but Isleton is better." It pays to please the customer; so we hold to "Isleton."

"I won't take any other coffee if I can get Blaine's Steel-Cut." Testimonials of that sort are pretty frequent. If you are not a user of Blaine's Steel-Cut Coffee you are missing a great deal of coffee satisfaction. And, too, at a very reasonable price. Only 45c.

MR. BENNER HURT

Mr. S. N. Benner narrowly escaped from serious if not fatal injury Wednesday morning while he was crossing Harrison avenue at the Curry corner. One of the Los Gatos jitney busses backed out from in front of the drug store and swerving back around the corner, as they do to make the turn, and as Mr. Benner has almost lost his eyesight he failed to see the bus, the back end of which struck him broadside and knocked him down. As he fell, Mr. Benner shouted and the bus driver heard him, and as he was backing very slowly, was able to stop the machine almost at once and so prevented serious injury or worse. As it was, Mr. Benner suffered a severe shock and minor injuries, but can be very thankful that he escaped as lightly as he did.

E. W. Allen returned Sunday from a business trip to the Atlantic seaboard.

COX FOISTS FALSE SPECTER TO FORE IN CAMPAIGN TALK

No One Will Be Deceived by Democratic Attempt to Use Great President's Name.

THE PEOPLE KNEW ROOSEVELT

Death of Foremost American Has Not Dimmed His Deeds in the Minds of Patriots.

By William Hoster

May one who was more or less intimately associated with Theodore Roosevelt in the last fifteen years of his life say a word in regard to the developing tendencies of the pending presidential campaign?

Governor James M. Cox, the Democratic candidate, with increasing frequency is using the name of Colonel Roosevelt in his speeches, as of one from whom the Governor has derived his inspiration for this momentous campaign, and whose support of Mr. Cox's so-called policies would be forthcoming were Roosevelt alive. At least, Governor Cox is at pains to make it appear that it is into his hands that the torch borne by Colonel Roosevelt was entrusted when the latter passed on.

Addressing the Ohio Democratic State Convention at Columbus on August 17th, among other things Governor Cox said:

"Need I remind you that it was in this State that Theodore Roosevelt, that great American, made his speech proclaiming his creed, not that the judges alone should be recalled, but that the judicial procedure itself should be subject to recall."

Acknowledged Error.

First and foremost, no man who knew Theodore Roosevelt well, and was proud to follow his leadership, needs to be told that he lived to realize the error of that specific doctrine which Governor Cox now drags from the political limbo of dead things.

But aside from this, the one outstanding note in Roosevelt's great career was his uncompromising, tried and true Americanism. He was an American above and beyond everything else. His Americanism arose above all party considerations. He was jealous of his country's honor, proud of its traditions, zealous in the maintenance of its integrity and independence. He labored incessantly to promote that national unity which he believed to be one of the safeguards of the Republic; and his faith in Washington's Farewell Address and in the Monroe Doctrine was such that he regarded strict adherence to the injunctions of both as the two great bulwarks of our national existence. If it were necessary to prove these assertions, columns could be quoted from his writings and speeches in support thereof. But one has only to mention the name of Theodore Roosevelt to bring before the mind a picture of a United States strong, self-reliant and independent.

Roosevelt's Position Clear.

One does not have to ponder long to reach a conclusion, therefore, where Roosevelt would stand if happily he were among us today. The man who in 1916 avowed that the supreme national need was the overthrow of Wilsonism and all that Wilsonism represents would have a mighty well-defined position in the fighting today if he were with us, and he would not be ranged on the side of Governor Cox.

The man who, though age was creeping upon him, demanded as his right that he be sent across to face with the two hundred thousand men that clamored to accompany him, the German menace; and who grimly laid down the plea that by his end on the field of battle the drooping morale of the entente forces might be revived, though the death of a former President of the United States would have had little in common with a candidate whose newspapers proclaimed sixteen months after the sinking of the Lusitania, that "The German U-boats have committed no crime against us."

Remember in what stirring words Roosevelt denounced the Lusitania sinking, and how, throughout all that drab period of American neutrality, his powerful voice rang through the land awakening the patriotism of our people to the culmination in April, 1917, when even Mr. Wilson finally was compelled to face the inevitable.

There is no law against Governor Cox's use of Colonel Roosevelt's name. Nor is there any law on the statute books providing for the crimes which are committed in the name of progressiveness for which Colonel Roosevelt stood. There are Napoleons of finance, of wheat, of oil and of industry, but there was only one Napoleon. There are Jimmies and Eddies and Harries, but there was only one Teddy.

In the campaign upon which we have entered, the name of Roosevelt will be invoked many times in many places in behalf of many things. But few in all the great army of those who followed Roosevelt will be deceived. They know above all other things that the safety and integrity of the United States lay closest to Theodore Roosevelt's heart, and with them his doctrine of stalwart Americanism will prevail against any preachment of progressiveism which seeks to lure them from the path of patriotic duty.

NURSING SERVICE IS RAPIDLY EXPANDING

This American Red Cross Work Flourishing in Small Towns Throughout Country.

More than 37,000 graduate nurses have been enrolled in the American Red Cross to date and its department of nursing is daily increasing this enrollment.

The department of nursing has been authorized to maintain an adequate reserve of nurses for the army and navy. It will continue to supply the needs of the United States Public Health Service to which it has assigned more than 1,000 nurses in the last year.

It will assist in establishing proper nursing service in foreign countries where the American Red Cross has organized hospitals, dispensaries and schools for nurses. Courses in home hygiene and care of the sick have been started for thousands of women who have never received any education in this direction. Rural nursing which was in its infancy a short while ago has been put ahead at least a decade through the work of the department of nursing and local Red Cross chapters.

Public health nursing has been extended to many rural communities and now flourishes actively in hundreds of small towns and counties. Nearly a thousand efficient nurses have already been assigned to this kind of work.

The department of nursing is uniting with other organizations in a year's campaign in recruiting nurses for training schools, in educating the general public as to standards of nursing education and in showing communities their responsibility toward schools of nursing. It will endeavor to meet all these needs as well as to continue the enrollment of dietitians who will be utilized as instructors in home dietetics, in developing nutritional clinics, and in supplying dietitians for the United States Public Health Service and the civilian hospitals.

The Nursing Service will continue to offer to women and young girls the opportunity of securing instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick in every community in the country. This instruction has not only laid the foundation for public health but in some places has given impetus to the establishment of hospitals and community school houses.

"As a community profits by the work of the nurse," says Miss Clara D. Noyes, director of the department of nursing, "it is logical that the community should be aroused to its responsibility. The American Red Cross stands ready to help in a general campaign of recruiting and must have the support, sympathy and understanding of the medical profession as well as the intelligent co-operation of the people at large."

HOME SERVICE FOR EVERYBODY IN NEED

Do you know what the present day Home Service of the American Red Cross is?

Many people do not know that, besides completing the work for ex-service men, especially the disabled, it provides the same neighborly service to families in general that it formerly gave families of soldiers, sailors and marines.

"Home Service covers a wide and varied field," says Frederick C. Munroe, general manager of the American Red Cross. "It gives aid to families in solving such problems as budget planning, marketing, tiding over times of financial stress, keeping children in school, helping crippled children, widowed and deserted mothers, children backward in school and children in conflict with the laws. It renders service to the homeless and transient, to the illiterate, to tenement dwellers, to the unemployed, and gives friendly assistance and advice to foreign speaking groups."

In addition to helping families in the solution of their own problems, Home Service helps in strengthening the weak spots in the social life of communities. It joins hands with others to make communities safer, healthier and happier.

Organizing action along lines in which the community is already interested is one of the objects of Home Service. It has established community meetings, patriotic celebrations, pageants and picnics. Rest rooms, recreation facilities, play supervisors and moving pictures have been provided. Through Home Service other agencies are influenced to bring about improved commercial amusements and better school facilities and to promote traveling libraries as well as to secure county agricultural and home demonstration agents.

If you need assistance at any time, go to the secretary of the nearest Red Cross chapter and describe the situation. Your confidence will be sacredly respected and every possible effort will be made to aid you.

American Red Cross Roll Call.

The Fourth Annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross will be held this year from Armistice Day, November 11, to Thanksgiving Day, November 25, inclusive. During this period the men and women of the United States will pay their annual dues and renew their membership.

WAR HOSPITAL WORK TOO TAME FOR MISS SEDGWICK

Serving in a London war hospital was altogether too tame for pretty Miss Adelaide Sedgwick of New York, so the young lady transferred her activities to France, where she ran a canteen for British soldiers near Calais. Here Miss Sedgwick had thrills enough to last a lifetime, for the German aviators bombed the vicinity nightly. Miss Sedgwick's canteen served 600 soldiers a day. She has been commended by the British government for her work.

JULIA STARTS OWN RIOT

Gives Chicago Policemen Turn When She Calls Them Out.

Mental pictures of a new race riot flashed before the minds of policemen at the Stanton avenue station in Chicago when the telephone rang and a woman excitedly announced that a riot was about to be started in the vicinity.

Patrolmen ran to the automobile patrol and were soon on the scene. They saw Mrs. Julia Barfield, colored, awaiting their arrival.

"You-all the police I called?" she asked.

"Yes. Where's the riot?" one of the patrolmen inquired.

"There ain't none yet—but there will be if the law don't make my old man give me some money."

The police lost interest in their riot vision and settled down to questioning Mrs. Barfield.

"Me and my old man lived at 3604 South Dearborn street until he gets a express wagon and moves all my stuff to this rooming house," she said. "Now I wants the law to go with me and make him give me some money."

Pervus Barfield was not in when the patrol stopped in front of his home and a dozen policemen, headed by Mrs. Barfield, left the conveyance. Neighbors told the police Barfield saw them first and was going south in the alley while they were knocking at the front door.

Mrs. Barfield was told to take her troubles into court.

Where Pearls Abound.

On some of the islands lying to the north and east of Australia, inhabited by natives who still practice cannibalism, stories of valuable pearls are not infrequently found by daring white traders, even to this day. Natives often part with their collections of gems in exchange for mere trifles, particularly for things that they can use for personal adornment. In the New Hebrides, the Solomon islands and in some parts of the Fiji group pearls are still obtained in considerable quantities by natives. These divers perform wonderful feats. It is not unusual for them to bring up shells from a depth of 120 feet, and it is an ordinary thing for them to work in water 50 to 75 feet deep. They do this without diving equipment of any kind.

Donkeys Wear the Trousers.

There is one spot in Europe where the women have not yet taken to imitating male attire, but the donkeys have. Visitors to La Rochelle usually take a trip across to the Ile de Rhe, which is about two miles from the mainland. Nothing in the island impresses them more than the donkeys. These animals, who do most of the draught work, invariably have their legs encased in trousers, fastened with cords over the withers and the hindquarters. The natural impression is that a carnival is in progress. But the donkeys are thus attired whenever they go to work, for the Ile de Rhe is infested with mosquitoes and a peculiar fly most obnoxious to animals.

Willis—We folks at home should do our work without complaining. You know peace hath her victories the same as war.
